

Analyzing & Strategizing to Prevent District Losses in Special Education Litigation

About: This course is focused on informing and educating school staff on the topics and practices that frequently involve special education litigation. Participants will be able to identify sources of legal guidance, including the risk factors, when faced with a legal situation in their own educational settings. This presentation will review topics and practices that may be initiated in general education but have special education implications such as transgender issues, discipline, and responding to school crisis. Finally, participants will discuss and be able to identify possible resolution options in the different legal situations that they may face.
